Dear Kiong,

I am extremely excited to be applying for this mentorship programme about production-grade web development. I come from a Chemical Engineering background and have basically self-taught myself to transition into the technology industry. I currently work as a Front-End Developer in Fintech company.

Ever since I started my self-taught journey, I have been trying to look out for mentors to share and also learn from but that has not proved to be that simple. Hence, when I saw this posting up, I immediately jumped on it and applied. It would be awesome to be able to pick up a thing or two about best practices, design patterns and their trade-offs that are commonly chosen by you and your team. Thank you for your time taken to read this and I am truly looking forward to meet you virtually.

Sincerely,
Sean
